Everest Records was started in College Point New York in late 1958. The President of the label was Harry Belock, the Vice President was Ted Wallerstein. By 1960 Everest was located in Bayside New York. Everest recorded popular, jazz and classical and was distributed by Decca Records. From 1958 until 1960 Everest was operated as a division of the Belock Instrument Corporation which manufactured precision equipment for missiles. The A&R for the label was handled by LeRoy Holmes and Raymond Scott.

Harry Belock decided to start producing records because he felt that no one was recording stereo properly, so he started doing it himself along with engineer/producer Bert Whyte. Belock had custom recording equipment made to record on 35 magnetic film which he believed was an improvement over ½ inch magnetic tape. Everest Records only was prosperous for a few years and since Belock only controlled 22 percent of the company, as its fortunes declined the company board removed him from control. Belock left the record business and sold his interest to his accountant Bernard Solomon in 1960. Everest records declined in quality and it eventually became a reissue label that lasted into the 1980’s. Everest was purchased by the Tradition Label in 1966.

This discography does not cover the Everest classical recordings, which are much prized by collectors of classical music.
