

Discography Of The Delmar(k) Label

Delmar Records was started in St. Louis Missouri in 1953 by Robert Koester. The company recorded blues and jazz. Pearl Records was a subsidiary.

Robert Koester was born in 1932 and grew up in Wichita, Kansas during the era of the Big Bands. He loved to listen to Fats Waller, Barney Bigard, Coleman Hawkins and others on the radio and as a teenager went to live performances whenever he could. He began collecting records in high school but in order to find what interested him, he had to search in second hand stores and in obsolete stock from juke box operators because the music was out of print. Koester was collecting both jazz and blues. Out of high school he enrolled in cinematography at St. Louis University because he had ambitions to be a film maker.

He began selling records out of his dormitory room and joined a jazz club in St. Louis. At the jazz club he met Ron Fister who was also a record collector and they formed K & F Sales which evolved into a record store named Blue Note Record Shop. After a year in business, Fister and Koester agreed to split up the inventory and Koester opened a record store on Delmar Street. In 1953, Koester started the Delmar record label at the age of 21, named after the street. Because he was threatened with a lawsuit, Koester had to change the name of the label to Delmark in the early 60's. The first artists on Delmar were the Windy City Six a vintage jazz group that was based in St. Louis. Koester started searching around St. Louis for blues musicians of the 1920's and 30's. He found master bluesmen, Speckled Red, Big Joe Williams and J.D. Short which were all recorded on the fledgling record label.

In 1956 his father gave him $500 to get the company established and Koester had covers printed for five titles. The problem was that the covers he had printed were for 10 inch LP's and almost overnight most record companies switched over to 12 inch LP's and the covers were obsolete and Delmark was in a severe financial bind. But, Koester's was also able to profit from the demise of the 10 inch LP by going to record distributors and buying their stock of 10 inch records at a buck a piece and selling them at regular price and using the profits to continue recording. With this money, he brought out four 12 inch albums in a period of 2 years and was able to pay off his debts.

At this time he started buying masters from other record companies of recordings that were out of print. He bought masters from the Paramount, United, Regal, Parkway and Apollo Labels. When he purchased the Paramount masters he decided to move his label from St. Louis to Chicago in August 1958. His first location was in the Cathedral Building on Wabash Avenue, but the store was cramped and Koester started searching for another spot, he purchased Seymour's Jazz Mart located in the Roosevelt University Building. Delmark was located there until 1963 when they moved to 7 West Grand Avenue but quickly ran out of space at the new location. He moved the record shop to 11 West Grand calling it the Jazz Record Mart and moved the Delmark Record Label offices to 4243 North Lincoln Avenue.

Over the years, Koester hired other jazz and blues aficionados to operate both businesses. One employee in the late 60's was Bruce Iglauer who worked in the record shop and helped with recording sessions. Iglauer found a local bluesman named Hound Dog Taylor and brought him to Koester suggesting that he record him. At the time Delmark was having cash flow problems and Koester declined, so Iglauer founded Alligator Records to record him and that was the start of that very successful record company. Other employees of Delmark that went on to found their own record companies include, Chuck Nessa of Nessa Records, Jim O'Neal of Rooster Records, Michael Frank of Earwig Records and Bruce Kaplan of Flying Fish Records.

Delmark records continues in business today and is a big presence in the blues community and known throughout the world by jazz and blues fans for the strength of their catalog.

Delmark 12 Inch Blues 600 Series

The normal designation for stereo on Delmark releases was to use a prefix DS in front of the number, but for a short period Delmark used a DS 9 in front of the regular issue number. For example, the monaural release DL 603 was stereo release DS 9603. This system was abandoned after a few releases and the monaural releases were DL and stereo were DS, this even applied to releases that were originally given the DS 9 prefixes. We have included in parenthesis releases that were listed in the Schwann catalogs of the day with the DS 9 prefix.
